NEW TRANSLATION (PART 4)

CONFESS ONE BAPTISM (Paul Turner) -

In the new translation of the Roman Missal, near the end of the Nicene Creed, we all say, ōI confess one baptism.ō At first, that seems like the wrong verb. We usually say ōconfessō to admit that we have done wrong. Baptism is not a sin, so why confess it?

ōConfessō is a translation of the Latin word confiteor, which also appears in one option for the penitential rite at the beginning of Mass: ōI confess to almighty God and to you, my brothers and sisters.ō That word means more than confessing sin. It also means professing a belief in. When we confess to almighty God that we have sinned, we ōadmitō to God that we have sinned.

In the Creed, we confess or profess a belief in one baptism. A different verb starts the Creed: ōI believe.ō It means more than ōI believe that there is a God. ōIt means ōGod is the center of my life. I put my trust and hope in God.ō You can catch the meaning of it if you think about the baptismal promises. The first set of questions asks, ōDo you reject Satan, his works and promises?ō If you were asked, ōDo you believe in Satan, his works and promises,ō you could answer yes, you believe that they exist. But the point is to distinguish what you reject from what you follow.

In the first part of the Creed, we say we believe in the Trinity and in the church. That is where our heart is. Near the end we confess our belief in one baptism. Baptism is not the center of our life in the same way that the Trinity and the church are. So we don't say we believe in one baptism. Rather, we confess it; we profess that it is true.

STEWARDSHIP - A profound stewardship prayer is offered by the young King Solomon in today's first reading. He asks the Lord to give him an understanding heart, compassion towards God's people and the insight to distinguish right from wrong. An understanding heart, or wisdom, is a gift from God. It is a gift that enables us to make good decisions and prudent choices. Cultivating and sharing this gift is essential, especially when poor decisions and lack of compassion have consequences that affect the lives of others. Do we exercise good stewardship over the gift of wisdom? Do we share our compassionate hearts with others?
